Action required by Governing Body:

The Governing Body is asked to review the current register, and consider whether any action in relation to non-responders might be required.

1. Background

- 1.1 Clinical commissioning groups (CCGs) manage conflicts of interest as part of their day-to-day activities. Effective handling of conflicts of interest is crucial to give confidence to patients, tax payers, healthcare providers and Parliament that CCG commissioning decisions are robust, fair and transparent and offer value for money. It is essential in order to protect healthcare professionals and maintain public trust in the NHS. Failure to manage conflicts of interest could lead to legal challenge and even criminal action in the event of fraud, bribery and corruption.
- 1.2 Conflicts of interest are inevitable in commissioning. It is how we manage them that matters. Section 14O of the National Health Service Act 2006 (as amended by the Health and Social Care Act 2012) ("the Act") sets out the minimum requirements of what both NHS England and CCGs must do in terms of managing conflicts of interest.
- 1.3 As a minimum, CCGs must have robust systems in place to identify and manage conflicts of interest. This should involve creating an environment in which CCG staff, Governing Body and sub-committee members, and member practices feel able, encouraged and obliged to be open, honest and upfront about actual or potential conflicts. Transparency in this regard is expected to lead to effective identification and management of conflicts. The effect should be to make everyone aware of what to do if they suspect a conflict and ensure decision-making is efficient, transparent and fair.
- 1.4 CCGs are required to have systems in place to satisfy themselves that their registers of interest are accurate and up-to-date.

2. Key Points

- 2.1 As regards declarations and registers of interest, guidance requires that all CCG Officers, Governing Body members, GPs, all staff, including students, agency and seconded staff, together with practice staff with involvement in CCG business complete declarations. However, only those staff classed as 'decision makers' will be included in the register published on the CCG's web site.
- 2.2 Declarations are sought by the CCG on a six-monthly basis in October by submission of a signed declaration and in April by exception should there have been changes. The decision makers declarations constitute the register published on the CCG's website. The current register is attached to the report at Appendix 1. (Dates highlighted in 'Red' denote where there has been no response to the request for declarations in October 2019)

3. Recommendation

3.1 The Governing Body is asked to review the current register, and consider whether any action in relation to non-responders might be required.
