Have you or your family been affected by Windrush?

Some people who settled lawfully in the UK years ago do not have the documents to show their legal right to live and work here.

If you or your parents came to the UK from any Commonwealth country before 1973, or you came to the UK from any country before the end of 1988, the Government's Windrush Help Team can help you get the documents you need free of charge. Some grandchildren and close family members may also be able to claim compensation.

If you have lost out on things like jobs and healthcare because you could not prove your right to live in the UK, you may also be able to claim compensation.

Some grandchildren and close family members of people who came to the UK from any Commonwealth country before 1973 can also claim compensation.
