1. Background

- 1.1 Clinical commissioning groups (CCGs) manage conflicts of interest as part of their day-to-day activities. Effective handling of conflicts of interest is crucial to give confidence to patients, taxpayers, healthcare providers and Parliament that CCG commissioning decisions are robust, fair and transparent and offer value for money. It is essential in order to protect healthcare professionals and maintain public trust in the NHS. Failure to manage conflicts of interest could lead to legal challenge and even criminal action in the event of fraud, bribery and corruption.
- 1.2 Conflicts of interest are inevitable in commissioning. It is how we manage them that matters. Section 14O of the National Health Service Act 2006 (as amended by the Health and Social Care Act 2012) (“the Act”) sets out the minimum requirements of what both NHS England and CCGs must do in terms of managing conflicts of interest. The revised statutory guidance published by NHS England in June 2017 also sets out in detail the requirements expected of CCGs in managing conflicts of interest.
- 1.3 As a minimum, CCGs must have robust systems in place to identify and manage conflicts of interest. This should involve creating an environment in which CCG staff, Governing Body and sub-committee members, and member practices feel able, encouraged and obliged to be open, honest and upfront about actual or potential conflicts. Transparency in this regard is expected to lead to effective identification and management of conflicts. The effect should be to make everyone aware of what to do if they suspect a conflict and ensure decision-making is efficient, transparent and fair.

2. Key Points

- 2.1 Declarations are sought from CCG Officers, Governing Body members, GPs, and decision making staff (those staff with budget responsibility of £5k or above) on an annual basis in October with an update by exception in April of each year and the register published on the CCG’s website.
- 2.3 Declarations from all staff, other than those identified as decision making, are requested upon commencement of employment.

The updated published register following the recent six-month review is attached to the report at Appendix 1. Correspondence issued in an attempt to acquire declarations is as follows:

- CCG Governing Body and Sub-Committee Members – original request sent on 2 April 2019 with reminders on 9 and 30 April 2019.
- CCG Member Practices – request to the Chief Operating Team (COO team responsible for liaison with practices) on 2 April 2019
- Decision Making Staff – original request on 2 April 2019 with reminders on 16 and 30 April 2019

Those individuals and practices that have not yet responded to the April review are indicated by red dates in the ‘date of receipt’ column.

3. Recommendation

- 3.1 The Governing Body is asked to note the current register prior to its publication on the CCG website.
